DETAILED ACTION

1. The indicated allowability of claims 19-31 and 49 are withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Roy et al (6,646,983). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 19-31 and 49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Raza (6,603,771) in view of Chao et al (5,790,539) and Roy et al (6,646,983).

Regarding claims 19-22, 25 and 49, Raza discloses a method for operating switching apparatus having multiple virtual queues and multiple switch chips (see figures 2 and 3), the method comprising receiving an incoming packet, storing the packet in the virtual queues, determining when to pass the packet through the switch, and switch the packet through the switch chips (see figures 2 & 3 and col. 2, lines 38-67). Raza does not specifically disclose dividing the packet into fixed length blocks and concurrently transferring the blocks to different ones of the switch chips. However, these features are well known in the art. Roy discloses dividing the packet into fixed length cells (see segmenting the packet in col. 12, lines 37-40) and Chao discloses the blocks are concurrently transferring to different ones of the switch chips (see figures 3 and 4; col. 3, lines 50-58; and col. 12, lines 59-67). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to divide and transfer the packets as taught by Roy and Chao in the system of Raza in order to accommodate a higher transmission rate.

Regarding claims 23-24 and 26-29, Raza does not disclose sending a request for transferring and receive a grant for transferring. However, Roy teaches these features (see col. 4, lines 1-27). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the transferring technique of requesting and granting as taught by Roy in the system of Raza so that data packets can be orderly transfer through the switch.

Regarding claims 30 and 31, Raza does not disclose block types. However, Roy teaches this feature (see col. 7, lines 30-32; col. 11, lines 4-8; col. 16, lines 48-50). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the multiple block types (between traffic type and control type or between different traffic types such voice and data) as taught by Roy in the system of Raza in order to distinguish one type from the others.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 32-34 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
